ABOUT TAMPA THEATRE

Tampa Theatre is an “atmospheric” movie palace built in 1926 by architect and inventor of the style, John Eberson. Born at the height of the silent film era, movie palaces were intended to be the central community gathering place and entertainment hub for rapidly urbanizing American downtowns. Surprisingly intimate despite its 1,238 seats, Tampa Theatre’s immersive design evokes a Mediterranean courtyard with a starry night sky overhead, vines, flowers and a majestic peacock adorning the space, and more than 1,200 plaster-cast sculptures and reliefs. Eberson explained the design was to create the “illusion of an outdoor atmosphere surrounded by picturesque facades of old-world places... and the audience itself is part of the alluring picture.”

John Eberson built more than 100 movie theatres in his lifetime. Though he is best known for his atmospheric designs, only about 25 of his theatres were atmospheric and just 16 (including Tampa Theatre) remain today. Of these, Tampa Theatre is widely regarded as the most intact, well-preserved Eberson atmospheric theatre left in the world. In fact, Eberson himself noted that the Tampa was his favorite theatre.

As storied as the historic venue is itself, the programming within the Theatre is equally important. We open our doors more than 700 times a year for a dynamic mix of artistic and educational events, including new and classic films, live concerts, school field trips, community events and summer camp programs. With your support, together we work to fiercely protect, passionately preserve, and authentically restore the Theatre to the highest possible standards.

YOUR IMPACT

Your investment in Tampa Theatre this weekend helps to provide magical experiences for thousands of visitors. By bidding in the auctions, playing our unique games, and making simple philanthropic donations you are supporting:

The amazement and wonder of more than 117,000 patrons who come through the Theatre’s doors annually

Preservation of 1,200 sculptural reliefs within this majestic movie palace
More than 700 unique and diverse film screenings and live events annually

DID YOU KNOW?

- Of the 120 Oscar nominations this year, 75 of those films were shown at Tampa Theatre
- As an icon of the City, Tampa Theatre has appeared in pre-game trailers and footage from both the NFL and the NHL Stanley Cup playoff games and was broadcasted nationally
- The Theatre will turn 100 in October 2026
